I know he would be ecstatic. A big

MODEL UNITED NATIONS: AN OVERVIEW

By Samaira Yadav

Model United Nations is an educational simulation and/or academic activity in which students can learn about diplomacy, international relations, and the United Nations as a whole. Taking part in this can also help a student build leadership, debate, teamwork and public speaking skills. If you want to research current affairs, come up with workable solutions to an issue, debate them in a competitive setting, and win awards, then MUN is for you! You can research current affairs, crises and other international affairs. You also get a chance to debate topics related to such in a competitive setting from the point of view of our assigned nation. Not only that but you can work together with other delegates to get the best resolution passed, and win awards! Awards include Best Delegate, Outstanding Delegate, Honorable Mention, Verbal Commendation, Most Improved, and Best Position Paper. The goal of each committee is to come up with resolutions for the issue being discussed, which you will research for.

Each conference uses parliamentary procedure to function, where delegates will motion by raising their placard to open committee, start debate, open speakers list, moderated caucus, unmoderated caucus, close debate, close committee, and much much more! This is also used when each resolution is voted for. Each committee also has a chair, who moderates the committee.

IMPORTANT THINGS TO UNDERSTAND (and other tips to help you get started):

1. No crying is allowed in MUN. Sometimes we can't help it. Please go to a private location if you wish to cry. There are usually bathrooms near committee. Also, please don't throw a fit if you don't award. You'll regret it instantly.

2. Don't give up, even if you don't award. I'm aware that what I just said is a very cliché statement. It's not the end of the world if you don't award in the beginning. Just stick with it, and you'll see results. No matter how bad you did, you can always recover!
3. If you do award, please don't be a jerk about it. I don't want to hear anyone say that they "only got an outstanding." If you're disappointed in your performance, that's okay. If you really are upset, please express your regrets in private. There are people who didn't do as well as you did. It rubs people off the wrong way, just inconsiderate. If you want to be a good delegate, you have to be a good human being first.
4. Diplomacy matters. Can't stress this one enough. I can't count how many times I've heard people say that the chairs are all talk when it comes to how much they care about diplomacy. That's false. No one wants to give an award to a jerk. No one will be happy that a jerk took Best Delegate. Don't be a jerk. You should always be respectful to everyone you meet in committee, no matter what. Be respectful, and that includes being quiet when people are giving speeches. Because the biggest jerk that snakes everyone is the one who actually goes home empty handed.

And make sure to have fun! You'll be traveling to different schools and cities all over, take a break from the debate to get some food, mess around with friends, and meet new people.

However, while this can give you a good theoretical understanding of what Model UN is and how to effectively debate, lead, and speak, the best way to get a more intuitive understanding is to practice and compete! So, if you're interested, make sure to join right away, whether it's a school club, out-of-school, or individual, you will not regret it!

REPUBLIC DAY: COMMEMORATING THE DAY THE CONSTITUTION OF INDIA CAME INTO EFFECT

FIA CELEBRATES THE OCCASION WITH AN ANNUAL DANCE COMPETITION WHICH WILL BE HELD VIRTUALLY IN A SLIGHTLY DIFFERENT FORMAT.

By Chandrakant Trivedi

India's Republic Day is celebrated each year on January 26 since 1950, and is a national holiday. The day has a very historic and patriotic significance. It honors the date on which the Constitution of India came into effect on Jan. 26, 1950, replacing the Government of India Act (1935) as the governing document of India and thus, turning the nation into a newly formed republic.

India became Independent on August 15, 1947 and Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru became first prime minister. A drafting committee was set up with Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar, also known as Babasaheb Ambedkar, as the chairman who prepared the model constitution studying the British constitution and incorporating amendment after several deliberations. The constitution was adopted by the Indian constituent Assembly on November 26, 1949. And it came into effect on Jan. 26, 1950.

With a democratic government system, completing the country's transition towards becoming an independent sovereign republic, Jan. 26 was chosen as the date for Republic Day because it was on this day in 1929 when the declaration of Indian Independence (Purna swaraj) was proclaimed by then Indian National Congress at its historic Lahore Convention as opposed to the Dominion status offered by the British Regime. The 308 members of the constituent assembly signed two handwritten copies of the document (one each Hindi and English) on Jan. 24, 1950. Two days later, it was implemented. The Constituent Assembly became the Parliament of India and Dr. Rajendra Prasad took the oath as the first President of the Indian Union. President of India is the highest title, the commander in chief force of the three wings - Army, Navy and Air Force. Dr. Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan, a great scholar and statesman became the vice president, with a five-year term limit.

Republic Day celebrations

nationwide exhibit patriotism, fabulous festivities, and a national spirit. The main Republic celebration is held in the national capital, New Delhi at the Rajpath before the President of India and invites foreign dignitaries as guests of honor. Ceremonious parades are organized by the Ministry of Defense. The parade showcases India's defense capability, as well as its cultural and social heritage by India's many states joining with attractive tableaux. Twelve contingents of various para military forces of India and police forces also take part in this parade. The Indian Air Force displays breathtaking exercises in the sky, mesmerizing thousands of spectators assembled to witness this parade commencing from Rashtrapati Bhavan and passing through India Gate to Rajpath. The president, along with the guest of honors witnesses this fabulous parade, salutes them. He also confers awards for exceptional gallantry performance by jawans like Param Vir Chakra, Ashok Chakra etc. Many monuments are illuminated and sweets are also distributed

On the eve of Indian Republic Day (Jan. 25) the president addresses the nation and distributes the most prestigious and coveted Padma awards to the civilians of India for their outstanding contribution in various fields and for glorifying the nation. After the Bharat Ratna (the top most) Padma awards - Padma Vibhushan, Padma Bhushan and Padma Shri - in decreasing order of importance are announced. These awards are presented to recipients in a glittering ceremony held at Rashtrapati Bhavan the President of India amid the presence of the prime minister, other cabinet ministers and invited guests.

The Federation of Indian Association has a proud and illustrious track record of celebrating India's most patriotic holidays - Independence Day and Republic Day - with incredible success. FIA organizes the largest India Day Parade since 1981 in New York City as an Independence Day celebration. The Republic Day Celebration includes the increasingly popular 'Dance Pe Chance' competition to encourage and glorify India's rich cultural heritage and incredible talents of our youngsters in minor, junior, senior and adult categories. In the 1980s and 1990s it was widely known as 'Folk Dance Competition' and was held in New York City, displaying the versatility and talents of participants and choreographers. Prizes are awarded in all categories. It is regarded as the most popular social and cultural extravaganza. More than 18,000 people have participated in this competition in the past 37 plus years of its run. This year, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the format of competition will be virtual and is modified to individual solo dance competition to implement the government's guidelines and ensure safety. All related information of the dance competition is available on www.fianynjct.org.
