FIA Appoints Ankur Vaidya as New Chairman

Promises to build on former chairman Ramesh Patel's legacy and take the FIA to new heights

The Federation of Indian Association of NY, NJ, CT (FIA Tristate) has appointed Ankur Vaidya as its new chairman. Vaidya is joined by Bipin Patel, as vice chairman and Jayesh Patel as the general secretary. The current Board also includes Ramesh Gadhavi, Chandrakant Trivedi, Prabir Roy, Dr. Parvin Pandhi, Andy Bhatia, Srujal Parikh, Anand Patel, Dipak Patel and Kanu Chauhan. FIA veterans, Dr. Sudhir S. Parikh and H. R. Shah was chosen as senior advisors, while Albert Jasani, of Royal Alberts Palace, was chosen as the Unifying-Unity Trustee of the group, along with Yash Paul Soi as vice chairman, emeritus, for FIA's golden jubilee year.

The election was held during FIA's first internal meeting at its offices in Spotswood, N.J., since the COVID-19 pandemic, and after losing the Chairman of the Board, Ramesh Patel. The meeting was called by FIA President Anil Bansal, in concurrence with the majority of the Board of Trustees and was held under the supervision of independent counsels. Attendees included President Anil Bansal, Secretary Parveen Bansal, and 14 out of the 16 current Board members.

The primary purpose of the meeting was to address the inter-organizational review and brainstorm ways to point the organization in the right trajectory towards serving the community in these testing times.

Vaidya, 41, has served FIA as its president for two consecutive years - 2014 and 2015.

He is one of the youngest members of the Board, and the youngest to be chosen as its chairman.

In his new role, Vaidya wants to expand FIA's presence and outreach, and work with the wider diaspora, "from Rhode Island and Massachusetts to Washington, D.C." He noted that the Indian American community in some of these areas is "highly segregated," but has a lot to contribute. "I want to make FIA a pan-Indian organization representing the diversity of the diaspora."

The newly appointed chairman highlighted some of the changes the organization has implemented since March. "Covid-19 has been a learning curve for all of us," Vaidya said, adding that the organization is moving toward digital compatibility, including virtual meetings and events, as well as a revamped website and a newsletter. He hoped that these changes will help FIA increase its footprint beyond the tristate area.

Vaidya also expressed a desire to work more closely with the Consulate General of India in New York, as well as the Indian Embassy in Washington, D.C. "So far we have been a grassroots organization. Now we want to have more visibility in political education and engagement, as well as more engagements with lawmakers and influencers."

Vaidya indicated that an independent women's wing could be in the pipeline, "to provide women a platform to lead, connect and network." There is also a desire to build a community center, he said, where members could congregate, socialize with their families, and also have a place to host and conduct cultural and community events.

Although this year, the organization's golden jubilee year, will be sans a parade, due to the pandemic and the social distancing and public events mandates, Vaidya said FIA is determined for "a parade for the ages," next year. Agreeing that it is a challenging year, Vaidya said he, and his team, are dedicated and energized to carry forward Patel's vision and legacy.
